

Contents

1	Introduction . . . . .	1
1.1	What Is This Book About? . . . . .	1
1.2	Why Is This Book Important? . . . . .	3
1.3	Methodology . . . . .	7
1.3.1	Conceptual Clarification . . . . .	7
1.3.2	Empirical Evidence . . . . .	8
1.3.3	Consistency . . . . .	9
1.3.4	The Appeal to Moral Intuitions . . . . .	10
1.4	Overview of Chapters . . . . .	11
	References . . . . .	15
2	Harm and Criminalization: On Why Harm Principles Are Redundant . . . . .	17
2.1	Introduction . . . . .	17
2.2	A Further Specification of the Concept of Harm and Some Key Distinctions . . . . .	21
2.3	Temporal Baselines . . . . .	25
2.4	Baselines from Mankind . . . . .	27
2.5	Counterfactual Baselines . . . . .	30
2.6	Why Harm Principles Are Redundant . . . . .	34
2.7	Conclusion . . . . .	39
	References . . . . .	41
3	No Offense! On the Offense Principle and Some New Challenges . . .	43
3.1	Introduction . . . . .	43
3.2	The Offense Principle . . . . .	45
3.3	Theories of Well-Being and the Distinction Between Offense and Harm . . . . .	48
3.4	Harm as Wrongful Setbacks to Interests . . . . .	50
3.5	Conclusion . . . . .	55
	References . . . . .	55

4	New Legal Moralism: Some Strengths and Challenges . . . . .	57
4.1	Introduction . . . . .	57
4.2	What Is Legal Moralism? . . . . .	59
4.3	A Critique of Devlin’s Legal Moralism . . . . .	66
4.4	Legal Moralism Beyond Devlin: George, Moore, Kekes and Duff . . . . .	72
4.4.1	A Critical Discussion of George’s Legal Moralism . . . . .	73
4.4.2	A Critical Discussion of Moore’s Legal Moralism . . . . .	80
4.4.3	A Critical Discussion of Kekes’s Legal Moralism . . . . .	83
4.4.4	A Critical Discussion of Duff’s Legal Moralism . . . . .	87
4.5	Conclusion . . . . .	91
	References . . . . .	92
5	On Dignity Principles of Criminalization: A Critical Discussion . . . . .	93
5.1	Introduction . . . . .	93
5.2	What Is Dignity? . . . . .	95
5.3	Kantian Versions of the Dignity Principle of Criminalization . . . . .	97
5.4	A Dignity-Based Critique of Harm-Based Principles of Criminalization . . . . .	100
5.5	A Critique of the Kantian Dignity Principle of Criminalization . . . . .	102
5.6	A Critique of a Non-Kantian Interpretation of the Dignity Principle of Criminalization . . . . .	105
5.7	Conclusion . . . . .	109
	References . . . . .	110
6	A Soft Defence of a Utilitarian Principle of Criminalization . . . . .	113
6.1	Introduction . . . . .	113
6.2	Setting the Stage . . . . .	114
6.3	Specifying UPC and the Importance of Defending UPC . . . . .	116
6.4	A Critical Discussion of Husak’s Objection to UPC . . . . .	118
6.5	A Critical Discussion of Two of Tadros’s Objections to UPC . . . . .	124
6.6	The Counterproductive Criminalization Principle and UPC . . . . .	132
6.7	Conclusion . . . . .	134
	References . . . . .	135
	Appendix: What Is Well-Being? . . . . .	137
	Introduction . . . . .	137
	Requirements for Well-Being: Experience, Information and Autonomy . . . . .	138
	Some Challenges . . . . .	143
	Conclusion . . . . .	148
	References . . . . .	148