

Contents

Abbreviations

xxv

PART I: LAW, CUSTOM, AND REASON

1	Elements of Classical Common Law Theory	3
1.1	Law as Immemorial Custom	4
1.2	The Customary Foundations of Lex Scripta	13
	Enacted law and parliamentary sovereignty	14
	Hale on the foundations of enacted law	19
	Common Law theory and the language of politics	26
1.3	Reason and Principle in Common Law Theory	29
	Two conceptions of reason in Common Law theory	30
	An historical conception of reason	35
2	Law, Social Union, and Collective Rationality	38
2.1	Authority, Justice, and Co-ordination	39
2.2	Sovereign Commands and Individual Reason	45
	The jurisprudence of Hobbes's Dialogue	45
	Subjectivism	47
	Social union	50
	Reason, commands, and law	54
2.3	Common Law Scepticism	59
	Roots of the strategy of scepticism	59
	Wisdom of the ages	62
	Collective wisdom	65
	Community practice constitutive of reason	68
	Conventionalism	75
3	Hume's Jurisprudence: Law, Justice, and Human Nature	79
3.1	Law and Justice	80
	Justice as a juridical notion	80
	From property to public works: historical and analytic dimensions	82
	Hume and Common Law theory	86
3.2	Human Nature and the Artifice of Justice	88
	The artifice of justice	88

XX CONTENTS

Human nature and the 'state of nature'	90
Human nature and justice	96
3.3 The Task of Justice	98
Material conditions of social life and the task of justice	99
Justice and rules	102
Justice and utility	104
4 Hume's Jurisprudence: Common Law Conventionalism	107
4.1 The Origin of Justice: Structure of the Argument	107
The emergence of a sense of common interest	108
An apparent gap in Hume's argument	109
Shifting perspectives on the 'agreement'	111
Historical evolution of the convention	114
4.2 The Origin of Justice: Defining the Rules	117
Hume's analytic strategy	117
Imagination fixing the rules of justice	119
Imagination and reason	125
4.3 Answering the Sensible Knave	130

PART II: BENTHAM'S CRITIQUE OF COMMON
LAW: THE ROOTS OF POSITIVISM

5 Utilitarian Justice and the Tasks of Law	143
5.1 Justice, Utility, and Expectations	144
Bentham's early utilitarian conception of justice	145
Utility: 'the ruler and decider of all things'	151
5.2 Human Nature and the Foundations of Jurisprudence	155
The priority of expectations	155
Security, reason, and human nature	158
5.3 Security and the Fundamental Task of Law	163
Security: objective and subjective elements	164
Security: 'the principal object of the laws'	167
Civil v. penal: logical and functional distinctions	171
5.4 Expectations and the Genesis of Law	178
6 Bentham as a Common Law Revisionist	186
6.1 The Case for Stare Decisis	187
6.2 Conventions and the Limits of Judicial Legislation	192
6.3 Utility and Common Law Adjudication	205
7 Custom, Rules, and Sovereignty	213
7.1 Custom and Rules	215

	Behavioural regularities	215
	Rules as inferential entities	218
	Expectations and the prescriptive character of custom	220
7.2	The Role of Sovereignty in Positivist Legal Theory	225
	Theoretical functions of the doctrine of sovereignty	225
	Habit of obedience: mechanical v. interactional models	227
7.3	Development of Bentham's Doctrine of Sovereignty	232
	The seed-bed of the doctrine of sovereignty	232
	Sovereignty in the Fragment on Government	237
	Laws in principem	244
	Hart v. Bentham	250
	Divided sovereignty and democratic theory	253
8	Plucking Off the Mask of Mystery	257
8.1	Law in Eighteenth-century England	257
8.2	Critique of Common Law Performance	261
	Natural law and private opinion	262
	The pestilential breath of fiction	265
	Dog law	269
	Dead men's thoughts	272
	The paradox of inflexibility	273
8.3	Critique of Common Law Theory	280
	The dilemma of Common Law theory	280
	Private rules and public laws	283
	Bentham's theory of meaning	289
9	Utilitarian Positivism	295
9.1	The Expositor, the Censor, and Universal Jurisprudence	297
9.2	New Foundations for Law	301
9.3	Sources of Bentham's Positivism	306
	Bentham, Hobbes, and Hume	306
	Conceptual revision and utilitarian practical reasoning	310
9.4	Normative Dimensions of Jurisprudence	320
PART III: LAW, UTILITY, AND ADJUDICATION
10	The Judge as Paterfamilias	331
10.1	Procedures without Rules	333
	The ends of adjective law	334
	Collateral ends and judicial balancing	336
10.2	Adjudication on the Domestic Model	342

xxii CONTENTS

11	Judicial Virtues and the Sanctions of Public Opinion	350
11.1	Judicial Virtues and Constitutional Structures	350
11.2	The People is My Caesar	355
	Publicity: the soul of justice	356
	Accountability and the catechism of public reasons	360
	Democracy	365
11.3	Self-Preference and Benevolence	368
11.4	Strategic Egoism	375
	‘Interest in its most enlarged sense’	375
	Egoism as a political maxim	377
	Bentham’s constitutional strategy: a reinterpretation	381
11.5	Judicial Virtues and the Moral Sanction	385
	Sanctions	386
	Moral sanctions and ‘private deontology’	390
12	Utilitarian Adjudication within the Shadow of the Code	395
12.1	Utilitarian Adjudication: Outline of the Theory	395
12.2	Utilitarian Adjudication: Prototypes	400
	The Principles of Judicial Procedure	400
	The Equity Dispatch Court	405
12.3	Completeness and the Code	413
	Appendix: Judicial Amendment of the Code	425
13	The Coherence of Bentham’s Theory of Law	431
13.1	Law in the Courts and Law in the Market-place	431
	The role of legal formalities	433
	The two faces of utilitarian positivist law	439
13.2	Critique of Bentham’s Theory of Adjudication	443
	The paradox of utilitarian positivist adjudication	444
	The privatizing of adjudication	450
14	Afterword	456
14.1	‘Reading Bentham’—A Project of Critical History	458
14.2	Bentham’s Project	461
	Critics	462
	A sketch of Bentham’s project	463
	A common mistake	465
14.3	Bentham’s Revisionist Positivism	467
	The command model and its effacement	468
	System, publicity, and reasons	472
	Bentham’s positivism	476
14.4	Judging, the Judiciary, and Practical Reasoning	477

CONTENTS xxiii

The view of the code from the bench	479
The antinomian element in Bentham's design of adjudication	480
Judicial subordination to the legislator	485
Judicial powers to suspend and emend	489
Notes	499
Bibliography	505
Name Index	517
Subject Index	523