

Contents

On the Authors	VII
Introduction	XI

PART 1

A Way to the Rome Statute and Beyond

- 1 Ad Hoc Tribunals and Their Significance for Developing the Activities of the ICC 3
Anna Richterová
- 2 The System of Operation of International Criminal Justice Fora, in Particular of the International Criminal Court – Will the Future Be Governed by Politics, Orders or Law? 13
Tamás Lattmann
- 3 The Rome Statute of the ICC and the Recent Works of the International Law Commission 27
Pavel Šturma

PART 2

Contribution of the ICC to the Definition and Interpretation of International Crimes

- 4 On the Activation of ICC Jurisdiction over the Crime of Aggression 45
Claus Kreß
- 5 International Criminal Court, War Crimes and Crimes against Humanity 65
Josef Mrázek
- 6 Contribution of the International Criminal Court to the Prosecution of Sexual and Gender-Based Crimes: between Promise and Practice 83
Kateřina Uhlřová

- 7 Mental Element (Mens Rea) of the Crime of Aggression and Related Issues 106
Milan Lipovský

PART 3

Preliminary Examination and Investigation

- 8 Making the Wrong Enemies? The ICC Prosecutor's Dilemma When Targeting Powerful States at the Preliminary Examination Stage 125
Iryna Marchuk and Aloka Wanigasuriya
- 9 The International Criminal Court and Syria: the Absence of Jurisdiction and the Pressing Need for International Criminal Justice 148
Jan Lhotský
- 10 The Principle of Complementarity in Practice 163
Kristýna Urbanová
- 11 Al-Bashir and the ICC – Tag, Hide-and-Seek ... or Rather Blind Man's Bluff? 177
Ondřej Svaček

PART 4

Trials

- 12 All Roads Lead to Rome – Lifting the Veil on the ICC's Procedural Pluriformity 193
Simon De Smet
- 13 Experience from the Special Tribunal for Lebanon 207
Ivana Hrdličková
- Bibliography 223
- Index 251