

Contents

1	Securing Equitable and Sustainable Futures in the Anthropocene—What Role and Challenges for Environmental Law? . . . . .	1
	Michelle Lim
Part I Re-defining Human-Environment Relationships
2	Rights of Nature in the Anthropocene: Towards the Democratization of Environmental Law? . . . . .	21
	María Valeria Berros
3	Moving Towards “Ecological Civilization” in the Anthropocene: The Future of Environmental Law in China . . . . .	33
	Di Zhou
4	International Environmental Law in the Anthropocene: Addressing the Gaps Towards ‘Sustainable Development Law’ . . . . .	45
	Fabiano de Andrade Correa and Marina Demaria Venâncio
5	Ecological Restoration as a Legal Duty in the Anthropocene . . . . .	59
	An Cliquet
6	Governance for Protected Areas “Beyond the Boundary”—A Conceptual Framework for Biodiversity Conservation in the Anthropocene . . . . .	71
	Toshinori Tanaka
Part II Planetary Order and International Collaboration
7	The Ocean-Climate Nexus in the Unfolding Anthropocene: Addressing Environmental Challenges Through International Law and Cooperation . . . . .	83
	Stephen Minas

8	Consequences of the Recognition of Forest Protection as a Common Concern of Humankind for the Anthropocene . . . . .	95
	Maša Kovič Dine
9	International Water Law in Multi-scale Governance of Shared Waters in the Anthropocene: Towards Cooperation, not “Water Wars” . . . . .	107
	Remy Kinna
10	Rising China and Antarctic Futures in the Anthropocene . . . . .	121
	Nengye Liu
11	The International Environmental Court—A Necessary Institution for Sustainable Planetary Governance in the Anthropocene . . . . .	129
	Alexander M. SoIntsev
12	Global Assessment and Review: The Importance of a Transparency Turn in International Environmental Law . . . . .	139
	Nafiseh Jafarzadeh
Part III Implementing Transformative Law and Governance for Sustainable and Equitable Futures
13	Indigenous Rights and Universal Periodic Review: A Confluence of Human Rights and Environmental Issues . . . . .	151
	Jonathan Liljeblad
14	Constitutionally Shackled: The Story of Environmental Jurisprudence in India . . . . .	159
	Nupur Chowdhury
15	Liability for Environmental Harm as a Response to the Anthropocene . . . . .	171
	Jacob Phelps, Carol Adaire Jones and John Pendergrass
16	On the Hypotactic Imperative for a Transition from the Anthropocene to the Sustainocene . . . . .	181
	Benjamin Franklen Gussen
17	Municipal Solid Waste Management in India: Why Judicial Activism and Legislative Interventions Have Failed to Effectively Address This Issue? . . . . .	191
	Maneka Kaur
18	Can South African Planning Law and Policy Promote Urban Sustainability in the Anthropocene? . . . . .	203
	Angela van der Berg

Part IV Research Agenda for Sustainable and Equitable Environmental Law Futures in the Anthropocene

19 Pathways to Equitable Sustainability in the Anthropocene:
An Agenda for Legal Research . . . . . 221
Michelle Lim