

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction: Violence and foundation	1
The origins of constitutional democracy	1
Narratives on public mobilization and participation	2
The legitimacy grounds of constitutional supremacy	5
The definition of violence	9
The revival of the discussion on constituent power (and some possible reasons for its previous abandonment)	10
Rethinking democratic theories on constitution-making under the shadow of violence	13
Hypothesis and empirical challenges	16
Notes	17
1 Methodological considerations	19
A description on the origins	19
Legal positivist theories	20
Social contract theories	24
Contractualism and history	28
Genealogical model	32
The ontology of violence	34
Counting the deaths	36
Constitutionalism and forgotten time	39
Notes	40
2 The concept of constituent power and the concept of constitution	41
Introduction	41
Emmanuel Sieyès, Carl Schmitt, and the legal boundlessness of the pouvoir constituant	42

viii Contents

The paradoxes of democratic theory and founding 46
 Deliberation in constitution-making processes as a strategy to diminish the influence of violence 48
 Constituent power as a permanent reconstruction 53
 Looking to the future in order to avoid the view of the past 55
 Surmounting the debate on constituent power through post-national constitutionalism? 59
 Provisional conclusions 62
Violence and the different phases of constitutional formation 62
 Violence and the formation of the political community 64
 Violence during the constitution-making 68
 Violence and the enforcing of the constitutional regime 70
The constitution as a legal translation of a structure of power 71
Elite coercion as a prime mover of the constituent experience 76
Constitutional transformation vis-à-vis constitutional amendment 81
Constitutional transformation and the rule of law 84
The “no victims rule” 85
Notes 87

3 Violence and constituent power in the creation of the American Republic

90

The American experience and the theory of the constitution 90
Precedents: the Mayflower Compact and the colonization 93
*The “dramatic circumstances” and the origins of the U.S.
constitutional order* 95
 Slaves 95
 Indigenous peoples 98
 Popular classes 100
Wars of State-building and constitution-making 102
Internal revolution 106
The road to the illegal founding 111
Framing the U.S. Constitution 115
The ratification of the Federal Constitution 119
The bill of rights 123
Constituent power and beyond: constitutional transformations 125
Notes 130

4	Constituent power without “We the People”: The foundation of the Federal Republic of Germany	134
	Introduction	134
	Die Stunde Null	135
	The disintegration of the German nation	138
	A nation of refugees	139
	The two Germanies	141
	Fragmenting the nation through federalism	142
	Western Allied tutelage in the constitutional framing	145
	Involvement of elites in the shaping of the German constitutional framework	149
	Conferring democratic legitimacy to the Basic Law	152
	The People and the constituent power in Germany’s reunification	155
	The interactions between the German Federal Republic and the European Union constitutional models: liberalism, rule of law, cosmopolitanism	159
	Constitutional identity or the return of the German nation	161
	The voice of the German People	165
	Notes	167
5	“New constitutionalism” and the emergence of constituent power in some recent experiences	170
	Constitution-making in modernity	170
	European Union: Treaty Establishing a Constitution for Europe (2001–2005)	175
	States’ Constitutions within Federations and constitutional transformations	177
	Iceland: a never-ending constituent-making process	178
	Republic of Ireland: from comprehensive constitutional revision to punctual change	183
	Violence and constitutional change in the hands of temporary majorities: Venezuela, Bolivia, and Ecuador	189
	Republic of Chile: from sober deliberation to attempted revolution	192
	Constitutional transformation and authoritarian constitutionalism in Hungary	196
	Secessionism in Catalonia	200

x Contents

Brexit or the Mulier Sacer 204

Paradoxes of the new constitutionalism in higher lawmaking 210

Notes 212

Conclusions

215

Bibliography

219

Index

247