
Contents

List of Figures	viii
List of Tables	ix
Acknowledgements	x
List of Abbreviations	xi
1 “A broadband connection and some guile and off you go”: Introduction	1
2 The deviant entrepreneur, exploring economic opportunities in the “zones of ambiguity”: Literature review	17
3 “You will receive your money as promised. Don’t even begin to think it’s okay to threaten me”: Methodology	73
4 “It’s who you know, not what you know”: How touts buy and sell tickets	117
5 A categorisation of touts: The scale of deviousness	153
6 “I was arrested, banned, and received a fine of £1,000 – the best thing that ever happened to me”: The art of street touting	177
7 A case study of an online tout: The “glory days” and the future	211
8 “Why is it legal when Ticketmaster does it?”: Non-deviant identity formulation through techniques of neutralisation	233
9 When a ticket is available on Viagogo the “damage” has already been done: Conclusion	258
10 Appendices	269
Index	275