

CONTENTS

FOREWORD TO THE ROUTLEDGE CLASSICS EDITION	xiii
CONSOLIDATED PREFACE	xviii
Introduction	1
VOLUME I RULES AND ORDER
1 Reason and Evolution	9
Construction and evolution	9
The tenets of Cartesian rationalism	10
The permanent limitations of our factual knowledge	12
Factual knowledge and science	15
The concurrent evolution of mind and society: the role of rules	17
The false dichotomy of 'natural' and 'artificial'	20
The rise of the evolutionary approach	22
The persistence of constructivism in current thought	24
Our anthropomorphic language	26
Reason and abstraction	28
Why the extreme forms of constructivist rationalism         regularly lead to a revolt against reason	31
2 Cosmos and Taxis	34
The concept of order	34
The two sources of order	36

	The distinguishing properties of spontaneous orders	37
	Spontaneous orders in nature	38
	In society, reliance on spontaneous order both extends and limits our powers of control	39
	Spontaneous orders result from their elements obeying certain rules of conduct	41
	The spontaneous order of society is made up of individuals and organizations	44
	The rules of spontaneous orders and the rules of organization	46
	The terms 'organism' and 'organization'	50
3	Principles and Expediency	53
	Individual aims and collective benefits	53
	Freedom can be preserved only by following principles and is destroyed by following expediency	54
	The 'necessities' of policy are generally the consequences of earlier measures	57
	The danger of attaching greater importance to the predictable rather than to the merely possible consequences of our actions	59
	Spurious realism and the required courage to consider utopia	60
	The role of the lawyer in political evolution	62
	The modern development of law has been guided largely by false economics	64
4	The Changing Concept of Law	69
	Law is older than legislation	69
	The lessons of ethology and cultural anthropology	71
	The process of articulation of practices	73
	Factual and normative rules	75
	Early law	77
	The classical and the medieval tradition	78
	The distinctive attributes of law arising from custom and precedent	81
	Why grown law requires correction by legislation	84
	The origin of legislative bodies	85
	Allegiance and sovereignty	87
5	Nomos: The Law of Liberty	90
	The functions of the judge	90
	How the task of the judge differs from that of the head of an organization	93

The aim of jurisdiction is the maintenance of an ongoing order of actions	94
'Actions towards others' and the protection of expectations	96
In a dynamic order of actions only some expectations can be protected	98
The maximal coincidence of expectations is achieved by the delimitation of protected domains	101
The general problem of the effects of values on facts	105
The 'purpose' of law	107
The articulations of the law and the predictability of judicial decisions	109
The function of the judge is confined to a spontaneous order	112
Conclusions	116
6 Thesis: The Law of Legislation	118
Legislation originates from the necessity of establishing rules of organization	118
Law and statute: the enforcement of law and the execution of commands	120
Legislation and the theory of the separation of powers	122
The governmental functions of representative assemblies	123
Private law and public law	125
Constitutional law	127
Financial legislation	129
Administrative law and the police power	130
The 'measures' of policy	132
The transformation of private law into public law by 'social' legislation	133
The mental bias of a legislature preoccupied with government	136
NOTES	137
 VOLUME 2 THE MIRAGE OF SOCIAL JUSTICE
7 General Welfare and Particular Purposes	169
In a free society the general good consists principally in the facilitation of the pursuit of unknown individual purposes	169
The general interest and collective goods	173
Rules and ignorance	176

	The significance of abstract rules as guides in a world in which most of the particulars are unknown	178
	Will and opinion, ends and values, commands and rules, and other terminological issues	180
	Abstract rules operate as ultimate values because they serve unknown particular ends	182
	The constructivist fallacy of utilitarianism	184
	All valid criticism or improvement of rules of conduct must proceed within a given system of such rules	190
	'Generalization' and the test of universalizability	194
	To perform their functions rules must be applied through the long run	195
8	The Quest for Justice	197
	Justice is an attribute of human conduct	197
	Justice and the law	200
	Rules of just conduct are generally prohibitions of unjust conduct	201
	Not only the rules of just conduct, but also the test of their justice, are negative	204
	The significance of the negative character of the test of injustice	207
	The ideology of legal positivism	210
	The 'pure theory of law'	213
	Law and morals	220
	The 'law of nature'	222
	Law and sovereignty	224
9	'Social' or Distributive Justice	226
	The concept of 'social justice'	226
	The conquest of public imagination by 'social justice'	229
	The inapplicability of the concept of justice to the results of a spontaneous process	231
	The rationale of the economic game in which only the conduct of the players but not the result can be just	234
	The alleged necessity of a belief in the justice of rewards	236
	There is no 'value to society'	238
	The meaning of 'social'	241
	'Social justice' and equality	243
	'Equality of opportunity'	246
	'Social justice' and freedom under the law	247
	The spatial range of 'social justice'	250

	Claims for compensation for distasteful jobs	253
	The resentment of the loss of accustomed positions	255
	Conclusions	257
	Appendix to chapter 9: Justice and individual rights	261
10	The Market Order or Catallaxy	267
	The nature of the market order	267
	A free society is a pluralistic society without a common hierarchy of particular ends	269
	Though not a single economy, the Great Society is still held together mainly by what vulgarly are called economic relations	271
	The aim of policy in a society of free men cannot be a maximum of foreknown results but only an abstract order	273
	The game of catallaxy	275
	In judging the adaptations to changing circumstances comparisons of the new with the former position are irrelevant	279
	Rules of just conduct protect only material domains and not market values	282
	The correspondence of expectations is brought about by a disappointment of some expectations	283
	Abstract rules of just conduct can determine only chances and not particular results	284
	Specific commands ('interference') in a catallaxy create disorder and can never be just	286
	The aim of law should be to improve equally the chances of all	288
	The Good Society is one in which the chances of anyone selected at random are likely to be as great as possible	290
11	The Discipline of Abstract Rules and the Emotions of the Tribal Society	291
	The pursuit of unattainable goals may prevent the achievement of the possible	291
	The causes of the revival of the organizational thinking of the tribe	292
	The immoral consequences of morally inspired efforts	293
	In the Great Society 'social justice' becomes a disruptive force	295
	From the care of the most unfortunate to the protection of vested interests	297
	Attempts to 'correct' the order of the market lead to its destruction	299
	The revolt against the discipline of abstract rules	300

The morals of the open and of the closed society	302
The old conflict between loyalty and justice	305
The small group in the Open Society	306
The importance of voluntary associations	307

NOTES	310
-------	-----

VOLUME 3 THE POLITICAL ORDER OF A FREE PEOPLE

12 Majority Opinion and Contemporary Democracy	345
The progressive disillusionment about democracy	345
Unlimited power: the fatal defect of the prevailing form of democracy	347
The true content of the democratic ideal	349
The weakness of an elective assembly with unlimited powers	352
Coalitions of organized interests and the apparatus of para-government	356
Agreement on general rules and on particular measures	359
13 The Division of Democratic Powers	363
The loss of the original conception of the functions of a legislature	363
Existing representative institutions have been shaped by the needs of government, not of legislation	365
Bodies with powers of specific direction are unsuited for law-making	368
The character of existing 'legislatures' determined by their governmental tasks	369
Party legislation leads to the decay of democratic society	373
The constructivistic superstition of sovereignty	375
The requisite division of the powers of representative assemblies	377
Democracy or demarchy?	380
14 The Public Sector and the Private Sector	382
The double task of government	382
Collective goods	384
The delimitation of the public sector	387
The independent sector	389
Taxation and the size of the public sector	391
Security	394
Government monopoly of services	396

	Information and education	400
	Other critical issues	401
15	Government Policy and the Market	404
	The advantages of competition do not depend on it being 'perfect'	404
	Competition as a discovery procedure	406
	If the factual requirements of 'perfect' competition are absent, it is not possible to make firms act 'as if' it existed	408
	The achievements of the free market	412
	Competition and rationality	413
	Size, concentration and power	415
	The political aspects of economic power	417
	When monopoly becomes harmful	421
	The problem of anti-monopoly legislation	422
	Not individual but group selfishness is the chief threat	425
	The consequences of a political determination of the incomes of the different groups	430
	Organizable and non-organizable interests	433
16	The Miscarriage of the Democratic Ideal: A Recapitulation	434
	The miscarriage of the democratic ideal	434
	A 'bargaining' democracy	435
	The playball of group interests	435
	Laws versus directions	436
	Laws and arbitrary government	437
	From unequal treatment to arbitrariness	438
	Separation of powers to prevent unlimited government	439
17	A Model Constitution	441
	The wrong turn taken by the development of representative institutions	441
	The value of a model of an ideal constitution	443
	The basic principles	445
	The two representative bodies with distinctive functions	447
	Further observations on representation by age groups	452
	The Governmental Assembly	454
	The Constitutional Court	455
	The general structure of authority	457
	Emergency powers	458
	The division of financial powers	460

18 The Containment of Power and the Dethronement of Politics	462
Limited and unlimited power	462
Peace, freedom and justice: the three great negatives	464
Centralization and decentralization	466
The rule of the majority versus the rule of laws approved         by the majority	467
Moral confusion and the decay of language	469
Democratic procedure and egalitarian objectives	471
'State' and 'society'	473
A game according to rules can never know justice of treatment	475
The para-government of organized interests and the         hypertrophy of government	476
Unlimited democracy and centralization	478
The devolution of internal policy to local government	479
The abolition of the government monopoly of services	480
The dethronement of politics	481
Epilogue: The Three Sources of Human Values	486
The errors of sociobiology	486
The process of cultural evolution	488
The evolution of self-maintaining complex structures	491
The stratification of rules of conduct	492
Customary rules and economic order	493
The discipline of freedom	496
The re-emergence of suppressed primordial instincts	497
Evolution, tradition and progress	500
The construction of new morals to serve old instincts: Marx	501
The destruction of indispensable values by scientific         error: Freud	504
The tables turned	507
NOTES	508
INDEX OF AUTHORS CITED IN VOLUMES 1–3	530
SUBJECT INDEX TO VOLUMES 1–3	536