

Contents

List of Contributors	page xvii
Preface	xix

PART I INTRODUCTION

1	Theoretical Perspectives on the Social and Political Foundations of Constitutions	3
	Denis J. Galligan and Mila Versteeg
1.1	Introduction	3
1.2	What Is a Constitution?	6
1.3	Constitutions as Expressions of Values	8
1.3.1	National Values, Identity, and Mission Statements	8
1.3.2	Transnational Values and Diffusion	13
1.3.3	Democratic Values and the People	16
1.4	Constitutions as Manifestations of Power	18
1.5	Constitutions as Social Coordination	23
1.5.1	The Practical Value of Coordination Theory	29
1.5.2	Content and Coordination	31
1.5.3	Process and Coordination	33
1.5.4	Critiques of Coordination Theory	37
1.6	Constitutions as Social Contracts	39
1.7	Conclusion	42

PART II THEORETICAL PERSPECTIVES

2	Why a Constitution?	51
	Russell Hardin
2.1	Introduction: Two Strategic Schools	51
2.2	Contractarian Theories	52

2.3	Coordination Theories	59
2.4	Caveats and Clarifications	62
2.5	What Constitutions Do	64
2.6	Limits on Government	65
2.7	Concluding Remarks	67
2.8	Methodological Note	69
3	Constitutions as Mission Statements	73
	Jeff King
3.1	Introduction	73
3.2	Some Existing Accounts of the Purpose of Democratic Constitutions	74
3.2.1	The Social Contract	75
3.2.2	Limited Government	77
3.2.3	Coordination and Stability	78
3.3	Constitutions as Mission Statements	80
3.3.1	The Nature of Mission Statements	81
3.3.2	The Forms of Mission Statement Provisions	82
3.3.3	Four Positive Potential Functions of Mission Statement Provisions	85
3.4	Objections	91
3.4.1	Mission Statements Are Destabilising	91
3.4.2	Mission Statements Are Pious Wishes	91
3.4.3	Mission Statements Give Effect to Elite Bargains	93
3.4.4	Mission Statements Are Inescapably Conservative	95
3.4.5	Mission Statements Invite Judicial Supremacy	96
3.5	Conclusion	97
4	Transnational Constitutionalism: A Conceptual Framework	103
	Benedikt Goderis and Mila Versteeg
4.1	Introduction	103
4.2	Mechanisms of Constitutional Diffusion	105
4.3	Altered Material Payoffs: Coercion and Competition	106
4.3.1	Coercion	106
4.3.2	Competition	112
4.4	Altered Beliefs: Learning	115
4.5	Social Benefits and Cognitive Pressures: Acculturation	119
4.6	The End of Constitutional History?	122
4.7	Conclusion	125

5	The People, the Constitution, and the Idea of Representation	134
	Denis J. Galligan
5.1	Introduction	134
5.2	The People in the Constitution	136
5.3	On the Nature of Constitutions	140
5.4	The People and Their Representation	143
5.5	Representation as the Foundation of Modern Constitutions	147
5.6	Representation, Democracy, and Rights	149
6	The Strategic Foundations of Constitutions	157
	Ran Hirschl
6.1	Introduction	157
6.2	The Ideational Story	158
6.3	The Functionalist Story	161
6.4	Constitutions as Strategic Instruments of Power	163
6.5	From Theory to Practice	170
6.6	Conclusion	177
7	Constitutions as Contract, Constitutions as Charters	182
	Tom Ginsburg
7.1	Introduction	182
7.2	The Coordination Critique: Three Objections	183
	7.2.1 Agreement	184
	7.2.2 Third-Party Enforcement	186
	7.2.3 Ongoing Governance	188
7.3	Constitutions as Contracts	192
	7.3.1 Constitutional Negotiation	192
	7.3.2 The Content of Constitutions	196
	7.3.3 Changed Circumstances and Constitutional Renegotiation	198
7.4	Conclusion	201
	PART III CASE STUDIES
8	Accidental Constitutionalism: The Political Foundations and Implications of Constitution-Making in Israel	207
	Adam Shinar
8.1	Introduction	207
8.2	A Brief History of Israeli Constitution-Making and the Rise of Accidental Constitutionalism	209

8.2.1	Legislative Constitution-Making	210
8.2.2	Judicial Constitution-Making	214
8.3	Three Theories of Accidental Constitutionalism	217
8.3.1	The Constructivist Thesis	217
8.3.2	The Political Fragmentation Thesis	219
8.3.3	The Political Hegemony Thesis	221
8.4	The Consequences of Accidental Constitutionalism	223
8.4.1	Delegation of Power to the Judiciary	223
8.4.2	Cessation of Legislative Constitutional Development and Increase in Court-Curbing Efforts	225
8.4.3	Legitimacy of the Supreme Court	227
8.4.4	Compliance with Judicial Decisions	229
8.4.5	Constitutional Discourse and Constitutional Ignorance	231
8.5	Conclusion	233
9	The Myth of the Imposed Constitution	239
	David S. Law
9.1	Introduction: The Mysterious Case of the Imposed Yet Enduring Constitution	239
9.2	The U.S. Role in the Drafting of the 1947 Constitution	242
9.3	Lost in Translation?	244
9.4	Three Mechanisms of Informal Constitutional Adaptation: Nonenforcement, Interpretation, and Functional Obsolescence	246
9.5	Formal versus Informal Constitutional Adaptation: Which Way and Why?	250
9.6	Public Support for the “Imposed” and “Alien” Constitution	252
9.7	A Model of the Constitutional Policy-Making Game	259
9.8	Conclusion: The Myth of the Unimposed Constitution	264
10	Social, Political and Philosophical Foundations of the Irish Constitutional Order	269
	Paul Brady
10.1	Introduction	269
10.2	Immediate Historical Background to the 1922 Irish Free State Constitution	270
10.2.1	The Rise of Sinn Féin and the First Dáil	270
10.2.2	From the First Dáil to the 1922 Irish Free State Constitution	271
10.2.3	The Drafting of the 1922 Constitution	272
10.3	Some Points of Particular Relevance for Comparative Legal Study	274

10.3.1	Transplantation and Transformation of British and Dominion Constitutional Form and Substance	275
10.3.2	Vocational Councils	278
10.3.3	Citizen Initiatives and Referendums	279
10.3.4	Rights Declarations and Judicial Review of the Constitutional Validity of Primary Legislation	281
10.3.5	The Philosophical Underpinnings of the 1922 Constitution	284
10.4	Conclusion	290
10.5	Appendix: Influence of the 1922 Constitution on the 1937 Constitution	291
11	South Sudan's Dualistic Constitution	295
	Kevin L. Cope
11.1	Introduction	295
11.2	Constitutional Diffusion, Transnationalism, and Institutional Self-Dealing	296
11.3	Southern Sudan: Kush to Independence	297
11.3.1	Colonization and Civil War	297
11.3.2	The Modern Schism	299
11.3.3	The Comprehensive Peace Agreement	300
11.3.4	The 2005 Interim Constitution of South Sudan	303
11.3.5	The 2011 Transitional Constitution of South Sudan	306
11.4	Global Constitutionalism Meets Local Structuralism	309
11.4.1	The Transnational Bill of Rights	310
11.4.2	Self-Dealing in Constitutional Structure	314
11.5	Conclusion	319
12	New Zealand: Abandoning Westminster?	322
	David Erdos
12.1	Introduction	323
12.2	Constitution Act 1986	324
12.3	Electoral Change	327
12.4	Principal Dividing-Power Changes	328
12.4.1	The New Zealand Bill of Rights Act (NZBORA) 1990	328
12.4.2	Māori Treaty Rights	329
12.4.3	Other Dividing-Power Reforms	333
12.5	Political Triggers, Not Constitutional Moments?	333
12.5.1	"Aversive" Constitutionalism	334
12.5.2	Electoral Reform and Elite-Mass Interaction	336

12.6	The Constitutional Limitations, and Significance, of the 1984–1993 Period	339
13	The Juristic Republic of Iran	343
	Binesh Hass
13.1	Introduction	343
13.2	The Road to the Jurist	345
13.3	Contesting the Discourse	350
13.4	Polemics	354
13.5	Publicising the Jurist and the End of Divinity	360
13.6	Closing Thoughts	363
14	Neo-Bolivarian Constitutional Design: Comparing the 1999 Venezuelan, 2008 Ecuadorian, and 2009 Bolivian Constitutions	366
	Phoebe King
14.1	Introduction	366
14.2	Constitutions in the Latin American Context	368
14.3	Establishing the Constitutional Trend	369
14.4	Venezuela	370
	14.4.1 Setting the Stage for the 1999 Constitution	370
	14.4.2 The Document Itself	372
14.5	Ecuador	378
	14.5.1 Setting the Stage for the 2008 Document	378
	14.5.2 The Document Itself	380
14.6	Bolivia	384
	14.6.1 Setting the Stage for the 2009 Document	384
	14.6.2 The Document Itself	386
14.7	Conclusion	392
15	The Constitution as Agreement to Agree: The Social and Political Foundations (and Effects) of the 1971 Egyptian Constitution	398
	Clark B. Lombardi
15.1	Introduction	398
15.2	The Social and Political Foundations of the 1971 Constitution	400
	15.2.1 The Emergence of Modern Egypt and Early Debates about Executive Constraint	401
	15.2.2 The Contest between Authoritarians, Liberals, and Islamists: 1922–1971	405
	15.2.3 The Drafting of the 1971 Constitution	408
	15.2.4 Deepening Ambiguity: Implementing Legislation and the 1980 Amendments	413

15.3	The Social and Political Effects of the Ambiguous 1971 Constitution	416
15.3.1	Executive Entrenchment and the New Incentive for Liberal-Islamist Cooperation	416
15.3.2	Responses to Executive Entrenchment: The Formation of an Embryonic Liberal-Islamist Alliance	418
15.4	Surprising Solicitude for the 1971 Constitution	424
15.5	Conclusion	425
16	Explaining the Constitutionalization of Social Rights: Portuguese Hypotheses and a Cross-National Test	432
	Pedro C. Magalhães
16.1	Introduction	432
16.2	Interests and Ideas in Constitutional Design	435
16.3	The 1976 Constitution-Making Process: Context and Constraints	438
16.4	Civil Law, Social Catholicism, and the Zeitgeist	443
16.4.1	Civil Law	443
16.4.2	Social Catholicism	445
16.4.3	Zeitgeist	447
16.5	From Small- to Large(r)-N	449
16.5.1	The Dependent Variable	451
16.5.2	The Context of Constitution-Making	452
16.5.3	Analysis	456
16.6	Conclusion	460
17	Popular Constitution-Making: The Case of Iceland	469
	Anne Meuwese
17.1	Introduction	469
17.2	Building up to a Very Modern “Constitutional Moment”	472
17.2.1	The Danish Heritage	473
17.2.2	Dysfunctioning Institutions	474
17.2.3	The Financial Crisis of 2008	475
17.3	Constitution-Writing by the People?	476
17.3.1	The Launch	477
17.3.2	Setting Up the “Constitutional Assembly”	478
17.3.3	The Drafting by the Constitutional Council	481
17.3.4	From Bill to Enactment?	486
17.4	The Content of the Constitutional Bill	489
17.4.1	Preamble and Structure	489
17.4.2	The Presidency	490

17.4.3	The Electoral System	490
17.4.4	Open Government	491
17.4.5	Natural Resource Management	492
17.5	Conclusions	492
18	Romania's Transnational Constitution: A Tradition of Elite Learning and Self-Empowerment	497
	Christina E. Parau
18.1	Introduction	497
18.2	An Aristocratic Occupation? Constitution-Making in the Eighteenth Century	500
18.3	Aspiring to a Modern Constitution: Kogălniceanu's Constitutional Project of 1848	502
18.4	Transnational ab ovo : The 1858 Convention of Paris Constitutes the Romanian State	504
18.5	The 1866 Constitution: "Plagiarizing" the Belgian Constitution?	507
18.6	Transnational Legal Professionals Adopt Marbury v. Madison : The Romanian Supreme Court Creates a de facto New Constitution	509
18.7	Constitutionalizing Judicial Review: The 1923 Constitution	513
18.8	Judicial Transnationalism Consolidated: The Postcommunist Constitutions	514
18.9	Conclusions	525
19	The Social and Political Foundations of the Nigerian Constitution	532
	Charles O. H. Parkinson
19.1	Introduction	532
19.2	Nigeria's Colonial Past	533
19.2.1	Nigeria's Creation and the British Colonial Administration	533
19.2.2	The British Decolonization Model	535
19.3	The Constitution-Making Process	537
19.3.1	The Macpherson Constitution	537
19.3.2	The Lyttelton Constitution	538
19.3.3	The 1957 Constitutional Conference	540
19.3.4	The Bill of Rights	543
19.3.5	The 1958 Resumed Constitutional Conference	546
19.3.6	Independence	550

19.4	The Independence Constitution at Work, 1960–1966	551
19.4.1	The Failures of the Independence Constitution	552
19.4.2	Size and Composition of the Regions	554
19.4.3	Emergency Powers	555
19.4.4	Political Culture	555
19.4.5	The Rule of Law and Fundamental Rights	555
19.5	Conclusions	558
20	The Once and Future Democracy: Argentina at the Bar of Constitutionalism	561
	Miguel Schor
20.1	Introduction	561
20.2	Oligarchy	563
20.3	Dictatorship	567
20.4	Democracy	572
20.4.1	The 1994 Constitutional Reforms	572
20.4.2	Presidentialism	574
20.5	Conclusion	578
21	Battle between Law and Society in Micronesia	584
	Brian Z. Tamanaha
21.1	Introduction	584
21.2	The Battle Lines at the Constitutional Convention	585
21.3	The Explicit Protection of Custom and Tradition	586
21.4	The Judicial Guidance Clause	587
21.5	The Impenetrability of Technical Legal Language	589
21.6	“The Framers” of the Constitution in Court	594
21.7	The Existential Battle between Society and Law	602
21.8	The Struggle between Law and Society: Going Forward	607
22	Constitutionalism of Shallow Foundations: The Case of Bulgaria	611
	Daniel Smilov
22.1	Introduction	611
22.2	Eastern European Constitutionalism as a Transplant	613
22.3	Bulgaria as a Subject of Transplantation	616
22.4	The Constitutive Moment: The Emergence of Pluralism	619
22.5	Parliamentarism as a Tool for Creating Politically Meaningful Pluralism	621
22.6	The 1990s: The Irresistible Attractions of Majoritarianism	623
22.7	Constitutionalism since 2001: The Advent of New Populism	626

22.8	Constitutionalism as Cement for Society	630
22.9	Conclusion: The Changing Meaning of Constitutionalism	633
23	The Shifting Foundations of the European Union Constitution	637
	Neil Walker
23.1	Methodological Pointers	637
23.2	What Kind of Constitution for What Kind of Polity?	639
23.3	The Persistence of the Documentary Foundations Debate	642
23.4	Uneven Development: The Early Significance of Legal Constitutionalism	646
23.5	The Emergence of Explicit Constitutionalism	649
23.6	Conclusion: A Shifting Inheritance	655
	Biographical index	661
	Index	665