

Contents

| | |
|---|-----------|
| List of Contributors | ix |
| Editors' Introduction | 1 |
| 1 On the Necessarily Public Character of Law Neil Walker | 9 |
| PART I CONSTITUTED PUBLICS | |
| 2 Rediscovering 'The Public': The Curious Case of Benjamin Constant Christopher McCorkindale | 35 |
| 3 Democracy, Political Parties and the Will of the People Andrew Maloney | 53 |
| 4 Between Contract and Constitution: International Organizations and the Protection of Global Public Interests Richard Collins | 69 |
| PART II UNCONSTITUTED PUBLICS | |
| 5 'Unconstituted Publics'? Scott Veitch | 89 |
| 6 A Dilemma for the Civil Disobedient: Pleading 'Guilty' or 'Not Guilty' in the Court Room? Piero Moraro | 99 |
| 7 Justifying Civil Disobedience With Reference to EU Public Consensus Haris Psarras | 115 |
| PART III EXCLUDED PUBLICS | |
| 8 Excluded Publics – Included Privates: The Janus Headed Nature of the Liberal Public-Private Divide Daniel Augenstein | 133 |

- 9 The Prisoner's Right to Vote: The Creation of an Abnormal and Excluded Public 147
Vanessa De Greef
- 10 Subjects to Citizens: 'Native' Enfranchisement in Reconstituting the Imperial Public of the British Empire, c. 1887–1914 161
Coel Kirkby

PART IV PUBLIC/PRIVATE

- 11 The Public/Private Dichotomy and the Unity of Capitalist (Re-)production 177
Gregor Clunie
- 12 The Public Nature of Private Law? 195
Claudio Michelon
- 13 Between the Public and the Private: Banking Law in 1830s England 205
Iain Frame
- 14 The Public-ness of Development in the World Trade Organization 219
Stephanie Switzer

PART V EMERGING PUBLICS: THE ROLE OF THE VICTIM IN INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE

- 15 The Impact of the Distinction Between Situations and Cases on the Participation of Victims in the International Criminal Court 235
Ania Salinas and James Sloan
- 16 Addressing the Interests of Victims: Perspectives from the Office of the Prosecutor 263
Olivia Swaak-Goldman
- 17 Victim's Access to the International Criminal Court: Much Remains to be Done 287
Gilbert Bitti and Leïla Bourguiba

- Index* 303