

Contents

Table of Cases	xi
Table of Legislation	xv
INTRODUCTION	1
1. The ‘General Part’ and the ‘Special Part’	1
2. A Normative Theory of Criminal Law?	6
3. Answering for Crime	15
1. RESPONSIBILITY AND LIABILITY	19
1. Responsibility and Liability	19
2. Responsibility as Relational	23
3. Prospective and Retrospective Responsibilities	30
2. CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE AS WHAT, TO WHOM?	37
1. Who can be Responsible?	38
2. As What Are We Criminally Responsible?	43
(a) Territories, Sovereigns and Subjects	44
(b) Moral Agents	47
(c) Citizens	49
3. Civic Criminal Responsibility	51
3. RESPONSIBLE FOR WHAT?	57
1. Control as Necessary for Responsibility	57
2. What Can We Control?	60
(a) Thoughts, Emotions and Character	61
(b) Intended and Expected Outcomes	63
(c) Risks, Foreseen and Unforeseen	69
3. The ‘Epistemic Condition’: A Condition of Responsibility or of Liability?	72
4. CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR WHAT?
(1) CRIMES AS WRONGS	79
1. Preliminaries	79
2. Crimes as Wrongs	81
3. Moral Wrongfulness as Condition or as Object of Criminal Responsibility?	82
4. Mala Prohibita as Wrongs	89
	vii

Contents

5. CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR WHAT?
(2) ACTION AND CRIME	95
1. The 'Act Requirement'	95
2. The Failure of the Act Requirement	96
3. Social Agency and the 'Action Presumption'	99
4. Criminal Responsibility for Thoughts?	102
5. Criminal Responsibility for Involuntary Movements and States of Affairs?	105
6. Criminal Responsibility for Omissions	107
7. Action and Character	115
6. CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR WHAT? (3) HARMS, WRONGS AND CRIMES	123
1. Clarifying the Harm Principle	123
2. Harms and Wrongs	126
3. Harms, Risks and Remote Harms	135
4. Giving Harm its Due	138
5. Crimes as Public Wrongs	140
7. STRUCTURES OF CRIME: ATTACKS AND ENDANGERMENTS	147
1. Attacks and Endangerments	148
(a) Distinguishing Attacks from Endangerments	149
(b) The Significance of the Distinction	153
(c) Legislating the Distinction?
2. Extending the Law?	159
(a) Attacks and Preparations	159
(b) Endangerment and 'Remote' Harms	161
3. 'Implicit Endangerment' and Mala Prohibita	166
(a) 'Implicit Endangerment' and Civic Responsibility	166
(b) Pure(r) Mala Prohibita	172
8. ANSWERING AND REFUSING TO ANSWER	175
1. Answering and Answering For	176
2. Refusing to Answer	179
(a) Bars to Trial: An Initial Typology	181
(b) Estoppel	183
(c) Prior Official Misconduct	185
(d) Entrapment	187
3. Criminal Responsibility and Citizenship	191

9. OFFENCES, DEFENCES AND THE PRESUMPTION OF INNOCENCE	195
1. The Presumption of Innocence and Proof Beyond Reasonable Doubt	195
2. Actus Reus and Mens Rea	202
3. Offences and Defences: Why the Distinction Matters	207
(a) Rape and Consent	208
(b) Murder, Consent and Self-defence	211
4. Distinguishing Offences and Defences	216
(a) Prima Facie Wrongs and Reasons	217
(b) Presumptive Wrongs	220
(c) Attacks, Endangerments and Justifications	225
10. STRICT LIABILITY AND STRICT RESPONSIBILITY	229
1. Criminal Responsibility and Criminal Liability: The Simple Picture	230
2. Strict Liability and Strict Responsibility	232
(a) Varieties of Strict Liability	232
(b) Strict Responsibility and Defences	236
(c) Strict Responsibility and Legal Presumptions	239
3. Justifying Strict Criminal Responsibility	242
(a) Risks of Harm	243
(b) Risks of Wrong	246
(c) Abusing Strict Criminal Responsibility	250
4. Justifying Formally Strict Criminal Liability	252
(a) Constructive Liability	253
(b) Justifying Formally Strict Liability	255
(c) Formally Strict Liability: Some Problems	257
11. UNDERSTANDING DEFENCES	263
1. Distinguishing Justification from Excuse	264
2. Truth, Justification and Belief	267
3. The Problem of 'Putative Justification'	271
4. The Problem of 'Unknown Justification'	277
5. Excuses and Exemptions	284
6. Reasonable and Unreasonable Mistakes	292
7. Finally ...	297
References	299
Index	317