

CONTENTS

1	Introduction: Building Justice in the Wake of Atrocities	1
	Note	7
2	A Fight for Inclusion: The Transforming Role of Victims in Transitional Justice Processes	9
	Introduction	9
	Who Is a Victim? Between Categorisations and Ambiguities	10
	An Unbreakable Cycle of Violence? Looking at Conflicts and Victims through the Lenses of Gender	15
	Violations of Women in Conflict: Between Stereotypes and Hard-Fought Conquests	16
	The International Discourse: More Attention to Women, or a Perpetuation of Patterns of Objectification and Sexualisation?	18
	Boys Don't Cry: The Complex Relationship between Masculinities and Conflict	19
	Missing Links: When War Enters the Household	24
	A Hard-Won Place at the Table: How Victims' Participation and Grievances Shape Post-Conflict Initiatives	25
	Perpetuating Silences: The Absence of Women in Post-Conflict Processes	30
	Conclusions	32
	Notes	34

3 Truth: Chasing an Illusion?	43
Introduction	43
Is There a Truth, Beyond Perception?	44
Truth as a Process: The Habermasian Theory and Its Reverberations Post-Conflict	46
A Legal Right to Know	48
Acknowledgement, Closure and Justice: Seeking Painful Truths	53
When Truth Hurts: Lessons from Pandora	54
Conclusions	56
Notes	59
4 Reconciliation: A Journey “From Madness to Hope”	65
Introduction	65
A Process of Domesticating Tensions, Towards an Ambitious Objective	66
Truth, Justice, and a Spoonful of Patience: Factors Contributing to Reconciliation	71
Contested Factors: The Role of Apologies and Forgiveness	75
Unrealistic Pursuit of Peace and Tranquillity?	77
Conclusions	80
Notes	81
5 Amnesties: Juggling Tensions within the Transitional Justice Discourse	87
Introduction	87
Ancient Measures, Modern Conflicts, within a New International Order	88
Defining Amnesties	91
One Problem, Countless Perspectives	92
Resisting Amnesties: Betrayals of Justice and Victims	93
A More Realistic and Sensitive Approach to Accountability?	94
On the Legality of Amnesties Under International Law	98
International Treaties: Have State Agreed to Surrender Amnesties?	98
International Customary Law	101
A Trend towards Accountability: Jurisprudence and United Nations Practice	103
Looking for the Devil in the Details	105

	Amnesties in Practice: “Same Cover, Different Book”	106
	Amnesic Amnesties and Justice Delayed in Argentina	109
	The Amnesty Process in South Africa	111
	Conclusions	113
	Notes	116
6	The Origins of International Criminal Accountability: The Nuremberg and Tokyo Tribunals	125
	Introduction	125
	The Negotiations: Confronting Different Understandings of Justice	126
	An American Tale?	128
	Innovation or Violation? Situating the Tribunals within the International Legal System	129
	Models of Just Retribution or Mere Victors’ Justice?	129
	Foundation of a New International Law or Violation of Its Most Fundamental Principles?	131
	Educational Forum or Theatrical Show?	136
	The Judgments, and Their Aftermath	138
	Conclusions	140
	Notes	142
7	International Criminal Justice Revisited: The Ad Hoc Tribunals for the Former Yugoslavia and Rwanda	149
	Introduction	149
	Old Atrocities, in a New System of International Relationships	150
	The Twin Statutes: Organisation, Jurisdiction, Limitations “Mere” Judicial Processes, or Comprehensive Transitional Mechanisms?	154
	New Achievements, New Challenges	156
	Law vs. Politics	160
	Conclusions	162
	Notes	165
8	The Hybrid Experiment: Assessing the Special Court for Sierra Leone	171
	Introduction	171

x CONTENTS

Conflict and Post-Conflict in Sierra Leone: A Country Too Lush for Peace	172
Shaping a New Form of Accountability	174
A System Improved: Outreach, Capacity Building, Proximity to the Victims	177
Flipsides: Design Faults and Practical Limitations	179
Clashing Perspectives	183
New Model, or Manipulation of Local Values?	185
Conclusions	187
Notes	190
9 Healing a Wounded Nation: The Reconciliatory Paradigm of Truth Commissions	195
Introduction	195
Fighting from the Wrong Side of the Law: The Era of Apartheid in South Africa	196
The Institution of the TRC and Its Structure	199
Truth and Justice, with an Eye to the Future: The Merits of Truth Commissions	201
Placing Victims at the Centre	206
Caught Between Wrong Priorities and Unrealistic Expectations: A Critical Look at Truth Commissions	210
Faults in the Truth-as-Healing Paradigm	213
The Amnesty Process: Is Justice the Price for Peace?	216
Conclusions	218
Notes	220
10 Adapting the Perspective: The Role of Bottom-Up Initiatives	229
Introduction	229
The Colonising Nature of Post-Conflict Interventions	230
The “global transitional justice industry”	232
Is Another Transition Possible? Framing Grassroots Initiatives	236
The Importance of Focusing on the Community	237
Doing Justice on the Ground: The Experience of Fambul Tok	238

Informal Mechanisms: A Cure-All Solution for Transitional Issues?	239
“All that Glitters is not Gold:”<sup>89</sup> Risks and Limitations of Customary Mechanisms	242
Conclusions	245
Notes	247
11 “No Hay Paz Sin Trabajo”: Incorporating Indigenous Perspectives in the Struggle for a More Meaningful Justice	253
Introduction	253
Indigenous Peoples and Transitional Justice: Lost in Translation?	255
Defining Indigenous: An History of Expropriation, Racism and Resilience	255
Subjective and Systemic Violence: Is Transitional Justice Treating the Symptoms or Curing the Illness?	256
By Other Means: Reframing Transitions’ Cardinal Points	259
Post-colonial Guatemala: Institutionalised Racism and Economic Elitism, in a Continuum of Violence	261
Guatemala’s Native Tribes: An Oppressed and Disempowered Majority	261
A State-Led Strategy of Brutalization and Annihilation: La Violencia	263
The War That Always Was	265
Guatemala’s Transitional Process: Innovative Aspirations Within a Conservative Model	266
Forgotten Promises	268
Rethinking Transitions: Same Objectives, New Sensitivities, for a More Ambitious Justice	272
Necessary Development or Excessive Stretching?	272
Expanding Categorisations and Practical Responses: Reports, Reparations and Reconciliation	274
Transformation of the Political, Economic and Legal Systems	277
In Search of a New Paradigm?	280
Conclusions	281
Notes	283

xii CONTENTS

12	Conclusions: Justice Beyond Rhetoric	293
	Notes	301
	Bibliography	303
	Index	327